Built To Live On.

Born of ancient inspiration and modern intention, these oak floors are an homage to the storied beauty of antique French manors and countryside estates. Each board, hewn from sustainably managed U.S. forests, is shaped with reverence for nature's own hand. No pattern repeats. No edge is alike.

Undulating textures and softly rolled edges summon the quiet irregularity of timeworn planks, where every curve tells a tale. This shaping defies the rigidity of mass production, instead offering a soulful authenticity that can only come from meticulous, artisan craft.

From this foundation, we prepare each floor for contemporary life—fortified with a generous 6mm wear layer to ensure it may be lived on, loved, and passed down. Available in plank, herringbone, chevron, or bespoke parquet patterns, your floor becomes more than a surface—it becomes a legacy.

Reviving the past, one plank at a time

Designed by Nature

Drawing inspiration from centuries-old reclaimed French oak, we set out to capture the soul of those timeworn planks—their textures, their tonal richness, their quiet irregularities.

Using original boards as our muse, we spent over two years researching, testing, and refining a sustainable process rooted in traditional craftsmanship.

By reviving age-old techniques and marrying them with modern precision, we've created a floor that embodies the character of historic timbers while offering the durability and consistency required for today's interiors. The result is an authentic, heirloom-quality product—timeless in look, legacy, and feel.
